NOTES ON NEWS OF THE DAY.

The first through train from Chicago on the Pennsylvania railroad since the Johnstown disaster arrived at Philadelphia on Saturday. President Roberts preceded the train as pilot in his special car from Johnstown.

If the steamship Saale had been sunk by the iceberg that struck her on Tuesday 300 miles out at sea, there would have been a terrible loss of life. The Saale had 1,200 passengers on board, and only boats enough for 600.

WILLIAM H. KEMBLE, a gentleman well known in the political circles of Pennsylvania, has come forward and loaned $1,000,000 to the state without security and without interest, to carry on the work of cleaning up Johnstown. The Legislature, when it meets in regular session in 1891, will appropriate the money to pay Mr. Kemble.

The Silicon Keapers' Journal proclaims that "there is no man so safe to trust, so sure of victory at the polls, as David B. Hill." But Hill says he does not want to go down to history as New York's Whisky Governor. He should appoint a censor for the Silicon Keapers' Journal, with salary to be paid from the Bureau of Labor appropriation.

TEN THOUSAND dollars are missing from the Ohio Democratic campaign fund of last year, and the fact is likely to make trouble for J. B. Townsend, Chairman of the Executive Committee. The sum is only as large as Mr. Cleveland's contribution to the national fund and looks hardly big enough for a fuss, but the party is quite poor since it lost the offices.

A RUSSIAN man-of-war has put in an appearance in the Northern Pacific, and is hovering about British Columbia, studying the fortifications and making other interesting observations. The Kamtschatka worried, and do not pretend to guess what it means. This man-of-war may be able to make some explanation of American rights in Behring sea, which the United States government purchased from Russia twenty years ago, along with Alaska.

LAST fall the Prohibition candidate for President received 20,947 votes all told in Pennsylvania. To-morrow the Prohibition amendment will, according to the admissions of its opponents, carry thirty counties in that state, the aggregate majority in which will amount to more than 30,000. It ought to become obvious to political Prohibitionists after a while that the people are making a big distinction between the Prohibition principle and a political Prohibition party without principle.

THE Hackensack weather prophet's cyclone, which was to descend on Washington some time between the 15th and 17th of June, so suddenly that the Signal Service Bureau was to share in the surprise and the ruin, has not yet been heard from. The people who live at the National Capital, sorely as they may feel the need of the appearance of a reliable weather prognosticator, are satisfied with the present failure, and will wait for the coming of a greater than De Voe, who shall have the discretion to plant his cyclones in the uninhabited and unexplored desert.

AN electric light wire got in some more peculiar work in New York yesterday. George Miller, a car driver on the Grand street line, undertook to lift a slackened wire over the horses' heads of a Second Avenue car just behind him. The wire caught against the ventilator, and was dragged down still lower. After the car had passed, Miller attempted to lift the wire with his car-hook. He felt the shock, called for help, and became unconscious. John Langan, a passenger, went to his assistance and broke his hold upon the wire, and he too was knocked down. Miller remained unconscious half an hour and was carried to a hospital. He will not be able to return to work for several days. Langan's injuries were also severe.

WOODRUFF, the man who drove the conveyance on the night of the 4th of May that carried Dr. Cronin's dead body from the cottage in a back street of Chicago to its resting place in a sewer, has made a full confession which implicates Alexander Sullivan as the head man in the conspiracy. Woodruff claims to have had a personal interview with Sullivan himself, and to have received pay for his part in the job from Sullivan through an agent. Except for the accidental discovery of the body, another body, badly decomposed, was to have been found in London at a later date, with Sullivan's clothes upon it, and with papers in the pockets that would have convicted him of being a traitor and British spy. He was to have been seen and recognized in Toronto and Paris previous to his arrival in London. Fortunately for Sullivan, Woodruff is regarded in Chicago as a liar and horse thief, and his story will have to be corroborated by better authority before it is generally accepted. However, Sullivan is the only party yet discovered who had a vital interest in the "removal" of Cronin.

THE Philadelphia Record publishes estimates from 52 of the 67 counties in Pennsylvania, of the majorities for and against Prohibition to-morrow. Twenty-six counties are reckoned for and the same number against the amendment. The estimated majority in opposition is 91,825. Of this, 60,000 is to come from Philadelphia, 10,000 from Allegheny, 15,000 from Berks, 7,500 from Lancaster, 4,000 from Luzerne, and Lebanon, Lehigh, Montgomery and Schuylkill are reckoned good for over 3,000 each. The Prohibition majorities are expected to come from the Northern Tier and the counties west of the Susquehanna. Bradford, the highest, is estimated at 2,400, while Beaver, Blair, Butler, Chester, Crawford, Indiana, Jefferson, Lawrence, Mercer and Venango are reckoned good for from 1,300 to 2,000 each. Many of the strongest Prohibition counties, like Potter, McKean, Warren, Susquehanna and Tiooga, have not been heard from, and these are likely to reduce the estimated majority. It must be remembered that the fight of Prohibition in Pennsylvania is not against the liquor traffic, but against a wonderfully successful system of high license.

GENERAL TELEGRAPH NEWS

A CYCLONE AND VERY HEAVY RAINS.

Have Wrought to Property at Points West On Sunday—Very Heavy Rain.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

ST. LOUIS, June 17.—A disaster has occurred in Kansas from wind and rain storms. The advice that Uniontown, 15 miles west of Fort Scott, on the Wichita and Western Railway, was swept away and that two women and four children were drowned. Uniontown, which is a place of 600 inhabitants in the midst of a thickly settled country, and it is feared the loss of life is even heavier than reported. As the wires are down for 15 miles on either side nothing definite can be learned. The storm struck the western part of Bourbon County late at night, coming from the west, where it had played great havoc. In August it assumed the form of a cloud-burst, and though everything possible has been done to obtain details by the railroads, all is uncertain at present. In Fort Scott it commenced raining about 7 o'clock Sunday morning. Old residents say it was the hardest rain in 30 years. The water commenced rising in Buck Run at 8 A. M. Lamb & Mead's ice dam on Sixth street burst about 10 A. M., causing the water in Buck Run to rise to the rate of three feet an hour, carrying away several houses and the bridge across Sixth street. The part of Fort Scott known as Belthorn is entirely under water. This was caused by the overflowing from Marmaton River. People were taken out in boats. Several bridges were washed out and trains were stopped on both sides of Fort Scott. The Kansas, Nebraska, and Dakota tracks under water for nine miles out. The Memphis road is badly damaged for about 1,000 feet 10 miles north of Fort Scott. All the people in the neighborhood in East Fort Scott moved out. At last accounts the water had stopped rising, and if no more rain falls the flood will rapidly subside.

STORMS ELSEWHERE.

MARTINSBURG, W. Va., June 17.—A heavy storm passed over the south-western part of Berkeley County last night. A gale of wind that did great damage was followed by a terrible thunder storm. This was followed by a heavy hail storm that added greatly to the damage. The hail stones lay in some places three and four inches deep. Crops and trees were ruined. The stock was badly bruised, and in some instances were killed. Several houses and barns were wrecked by the wind. No loss of life has been reported.

ABINGDON, Ills., June 17.—The heaviest rain for several years fell here yesterday. The fall was enormous and caused all streams and creeks to overflow their banks. Crops were damaged.

LIGONIER, Ind., June 17.—A cyclone passed through this town yesterday, tearing down trees and unroofing houses along its path.

COULD NOT IDENTIFY "SUSPECTS."

Maroney and McDonald Undergo the Scrutiny of Several City of Chicagoans.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

NEW-YORK, June 17.—The three men who came from Chicago to identify Maroney and McDonald as principals or accomplices in the murder of Dr. Cronin visited the Tombs this morning with authority to see the prisoners. The suspects were placed in line with a score of other prisoners. William H. Hatfield, who sold the furniture found in the cottage where Cronin was murdered, was the first to pass along the line, but he failed to identify either of the men. He was followed by Martinson, the expressman, E. G. Throckmorton and Deputy Sheriff Williams, all of whom failed to identify the suspects. Maroney and McDonald were then taken back to their cells and the Chicagoans left the Prison.

WINNIPEG, Manitoba, June 17.—Last night the Chief of Police arrested Martin Burke, alias Delaney, who is wanted for complicity in the Cronin murder. He was boarding an eastern express coach had a ticket for Liverpool. Superintendent Hubbard, of Chicago, who was communicated with, notified the authorities to hold Burke at all hazards.

CHICAGO, June 17.—It is stated by the police that Burke, arrested at Winnipeg, is a native of Illinois, who rented the Carlson cottage and had the furniture moved from No. 117 Clark-street to the cottage.

When Chief Hubbard was asked for an explanation of the arrest of Burke at Winnipeg, he said: "All I refuse positively to say anything about it at this time further than that is a very important arrest, and that it will be followed by another in this city. However, Burke is the man most wanted of the two."

SAN FRANCISCO, June 17.—Harry Black, Woodruff's step-father, in an interview with a Chronicle reporter, says young Black is his step-son. "He is a native of Canada. I formerly lived there and held an important official position. For the past 10 years I have resided in San Francisco. Frank is a wild, barum-scarum sort of a boy. From his ninth year he has only brought misery to us. He has brought a cloud into my life and nearly killed his mother by her worrying over him. Four years ago he was paid a visit here. He was ill and we took care of him. When he recovered he stole his mother's gold watch and sold it. Frank is about 28 years of age. He is an innocent-looking boy. I could sit down and talk with him and in three minutes he would be in tears. But the very next day he would steal some article out of the house and sell it. In fact, the boy has always led a dual life. There is a good and a bad side to him. He never could resist temptation of any kind."

Another Victim of Cigarette Smoking.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

PHILADELPHIA, June 17.—John Bankhead died suddenly yesterday morning at his home in this city. He was a newsboy 11 years old, and he smoked cigarettes. It is believed that those death-dealing wads of paper and tobacco caused his untimely taking off.

SOCIETY SONS OF THE REVOLUTION.

"Progress and Sympathy are the Conditions of America's Life."

By Telegram to The Freeman.

BOSTON, June 17.—The Society of the Sons of the Revolution met here to-day. Part of the main address delivered is as follows: The Society of the Sons of the American Revolution rests on a very basis than military rank and service. Pen and voice may be as useful to liberty as the sword. By essay and oration, Henry Adams, and Jefferson accomplished as much for their country as Gates, or Green, or Putnam by the most brilliant exploits of battle. Washington as Commander was no more a patriot and benefactor than Washington as President. Nor must the heroes of the ranks be overlooked. Descendants of the sailor, soldier, and civilian are recognized by our Society. Membership is based on proved patriotic service, however and wherever rendered during the war of the Revolution. Two paths open to our Society. It may live in and for the past. It may collect and treasure relics, trace ancestors, and extol the heroic era of our Nation. It may cultivate knee-buckles, cock hats, sword belts, and military uniforms, and all these, as well as the most picturesque, so brilliant and so suitable. Many naturally look behind rather than before for the golden age of our human history. It may encourage those inclined to venerable fashions. We tolerate ecclesiastical importing foreign dress favorable to their persons although slightly connected with the sublime work of the admired and gratified wearers. But we have a nobler thing than dress to be the antique and the esthetic. As our Society grows out of the past of our country, so it may become a potent element in the future. The test of Liberty is the power of the citizen to elect rulers and control revenues. Between the Divine right of the people and the Divine right of kings there has, and ever will be, perpetual battle. In England, that war led by Charles and Cromwell terminated when Parliament changed the succession and placed William and Mary on the throne. But while the sovereignty of the people was established, how many social, political, and ecclesiastical obstacles it yet resisted in Britain? After a hundred years of blood, France is a Republic. How hindered still by traditions of monarchy, aristocracy, and empire! What all we say of Italy, Austria and Germany? Education advanced. Ideas advanced. Liberty will triumph. Nevertheless for Russia between Czarism and popular sovereignty, lies a dark and bloody century. Japan has come young with hope. Yet, although British and American, and French and German, and Chinese, and India are far from their political resurrection. America should stand ready to give to all her help. Progress and sympathy are the conditions of her life. Our country has been exempt from the peculiar trials of other lands. Her growth has been in peace. The Atlantic is the barrier between us and the past. Hence on our soil Liberty had an unimpeded growth. New obstacles gave new strength. Colonial struggles made our manhood. The Revolution was our coming of age. Ideas advanced. We are a century in advance of our ancestors. Our prisons are better, our schools are better, our colleges are better. Steam and electricity have enlarged our views even more than our means of intercommunication. The time has come when we should be ready for wild beasts. To stop their yells manacles were scourged into exhaustion. In many schools knowledge was flogged through the skin into the brain. The courtly turbaned lady could whip her servant with an intolerable cruelty. The party rancor was low, venal and unscrupulous. During all the years of his administration no man was more abused than Washington. After his triumphal visit to New England he came back to the demands of office and the demands of a President. Only ignorance can look to that age for the ideal of our Republic."

ALBANY, June 17.—An adjourned meeting of the Assembly Ceiling Committee was held in the Attorney General's office to-day. After some informal talk the following was adopted: WHEREAS, And in consideration of the disclosures made during the investigation of the legislative and expert committees of last winter as to the conduct of John Smith, Contractor, and Charles H. THE ELECTION IN PENNSYLVANIA TO-MORROW.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

PHILADELPHIA, June 17.—The election to-morrow is to be held to decide whether an additional article shall be added to the State Constitution, forbidding the sale or manufacture of intoxicating liquors to be used as a beverage, and whether the first section of article eight shall be amended so as to abolish the tax qualification for electors. The proposed new article, popularly known as the "Prohibition amendment," is worded as follows:

Article XIX. The manufacture, sale or keeping for sale of intoxicating liquor, to be used as a beverage, is hereby prohibited, and any violation of this prohibition shall be a misdemeanor, punishable as shall be provided by law. The manufacture, sale or keeping for sale of intoxicating liquor for other purposes than as a beverage may be allowed in such manner as may be prescribed by law. The General Assembly shall, at the first session succeeding the adoption of this article of the Constitution, enact laws with adequate penalties for its enforcement.

The so-called tax qualification amendment proposes to change the qualification for a voter in this State so as to abolish the present constitutional requirement that a citizen shall have paid a State or County tax within two years, which shall have been assessed at least two months and paid at least one month before election. The proposed substitute also changes the limit of the required residence of another otherwise qualified elector in the election district in which he lives from 60 to 30 days, and makes other less material changes.

NOTES ON NEWS OF THE DAY.

The first through train from Chicago on the Pennsylvania railroad since the Johnstown disaster arrived at Philadelphia on Saturday. President Roberts preceded the train as pilot in his special car from Johnstown.

If the steamship Saale had been sunk by the iceberg that struck her on Tuesday 300 miles out at sea, there would have been a terrible loss of life. The Saale had 1,200 passengers on board, and only boats enough for 600.

WILLIAM H. KEMBLE, a gentleman well known in the political circles of Pennsylvania, has come forward and loaned $1,000,000 to the state without security and without interest, to carry on the work of cleaning up Johnstown. The Legislature, when it meets in regular session in 1891, will appropriate the money to pay Mr. Kemble.

The Saloon Keepers' Journal proclaims that "there is no man so safe to trust, so sure of victory at the polls, as David B. Hill." But Hill says he does not want to go down to history as New York's Whisky Governor. He should appoint a censor for the Saloon Keepers' Journal, with salary to be paid from the Bureau of Labor appropriation.

TEN THOUSAND dollars are missing from the Ohio Democratic campaign fund of last year, and the fact is likely to make trouble for J. B. Townsend, Chairman of the Executive Committee. The sum is only as large as Mr. Cleveland's contribution to the national fund and looks hardly big enough for a fuss, but the party is quite poor since it lost the offices.

A RUSSIAN man-of-war has put in an appearance in the Northern Pacific, and is hovering about British Columbia, studying the fortifications and making other interesting observations. The Kanaka are worried, and do not pretend to guess what it means. This man-of-war may be able to make some explanation of American rights in Behring sea, which the United States government purchased from Russia twenty years ago, along with Alaska.

LAST fall the Prohibition candidate for President received 20,947 votes all told in Pennsylvania. To-morrow the Prohibition amendment will, according to the admissions of its opponents, carry thirty counties in that state, the aggregate majority in which will amount to more than 30,000. It ought to become obvious to political Prohibitionists after a while that the people are making a big distinction between the Prohibition principle and a political Prohibition party without principle.

THE Hackensack's weather prophet's cyclone, which was to descend on Washington some time between the 15th and 17th of June, so suddenly that the Signal Service Bureau was to share in the surprise and the rain, has not yet been heard from. The people who live at the National Capital, sorely as they may feel the need of the appearance of a reliable weather prognosticator, are satisfied with the present failure, and wait for the coming of a greater than De Voe, who shall have the discretion to plant his cyclones in the uninhabited and unexplored desert.

An electric light wire got in some more peculiar work in New York yesterday. George Miller, a car driver on the Grand street line, undertook to lift a slackened wire over the horses' heads of a Second Avenue car just behind him. The wire caught against the ventilator, and was dragged down still lower. After the car had passed, Miller attempted to lift the wire with his car hook. He felt the shock, called for help, and became unconscious. John Langan, a passenger, went to his assistance and broke his hold upon the wire, and he too was knocked down. Miller remained unconscious half an hour and was carried to a hospital. He will not be able to return to work for several days. Langan's injuries were also severe.

WOODRUFF, the man who drove the conveyance on the night of the 4th of May that carried Dr. Cronin's dead body from the cottage in a back street of Chicago to its resting place in a sewer, has made a full confession which implicates Alexander Sullivan as the head man in the conspiracy. Woodruff claims to have had a personal interview with Sullivan himself, and to have received pay for his part in the job from Sullivan through an agent. Except for the accidental discovery of the body, another body, badly decomposed, was to have been found in London at a later date, with Sullivan's clothes upon it, and with papers in the pockets that would have convicted him of being a traitor and British spy. He was to have been seen and recognized in Toronto and Paris previous to his arrival in London. Fortunately for Sullivan, Woodruff is regarded in Chicago as a liar and horse thief, and his story will have to be corroborated by better authority before it is generally accepted. However, Sullivan is the only party yet discovered who had a vital interest in the "removal" of Cronin.

THE Philadelphia Record publishes estimates from 52 of the 67 counties in Pennsylvania, of the majorities for and against Prohibition to-morrow. Twenty-six counties are reckoned for and the same number against the amendment. The estimated majority in opposition is 91,825. Of this, 60,000 is to come from Philadelphia, 10,000 from Allegheny, 15,000 from Berks, 7,500 from Lancaster, 4,000 from Luzerne, and Lebanon, 14,000, Montgomery and Schuylkill are reckoned good for over 3,000 each. The Prohibition majorities are expected to come from the Northern Tier and the counties west of the Susquehanna. Bradford, the highest, is estimated at 2,400, while Beaver, Blair, Butler, Chester, Crawford, Indiana, Jefferson, Lawrence, Mercer and Venango are reckoned good for from 1,200 to 2,000 each. Many of the strongest Prohibition counties, like Potter, McKean, Warren, Susquehanna and Toga, have not been heard from, and these are likely to reduce the estimated majority. It must be remembered that the fight of Prohibition in Pennsylvania is not against the liquor traffic, but against a wonderfully successful system of high license.

A CYCLONE AND VERY HEAVY RAINS.

Have Wrought to Property at Points West On Sunday—Very Heavy Rain.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

ST. LOUIS, June 17.—A disaster has occurred in Kansas from wind and rain storms. The advice is that Uniontown, 15 miles west of Fort Scott, on the Wichita and Western Railway, was swept away and that two women and four children were drowned. Uniontown, which is a place of 600 inhabitants is in the midst of a thickly settled country, and it is feared the loss of life is even heavier than reported. As the wires are down for 15 miles on either side nothing definite can be learned. The storm struck the western part of Bourbon County late at night, coming from the west, where it had played great havoc. In Augusta it assumed the form of a cloud-burst, and though everything possible has been done to obtain details by the railroads, all is uncertain at present. In Fort Scott it commenced raining about 7 o'clock Sunday morning. Old residents say it was the heaviest rain in 30 years. The water commenced rising in Buck Run at 8 A. M. and the muds in the river on Sixth street burst about 10 A. M., causing the water in Buck Run to rise at the rate of three feet an hour, carrying away several houses and the bridge across Sixth street. The part of Fort Scott known as Beltown is entirely under water. This was caused by the overflowing from Matamor River. People were taken out in boats. Several bridges were washed out and trains were stopped on both sides of Fort Scott. The Kansas, Nebraska, & Dakota track is under water for nine miles out. The Memphis road is badly damaged for about 1,000 feet north of Fort Scott. All the people in the bottoms in East Fort Scott moved out. At last accounts the water had stopped rising, and if no more rain falls the flood will rapidly subside.

STORMS ELSEWHERE.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

MARTINSBURG, W. Va., June 17.—A heavy storm passed over the south-western part of Berkeley County last night. A gale of wind that did great damage was followed by a terrible thunder storm. This was followed by a heavy hail storm that added greatly to the damage. The hail stones lay in some places three and four inches deep. Crops and trees were ruined. Live stock was badly bruised, and in some instances were killed. Several houses and barns were wrecked by the wind. No loss of life has been reported.

ABINGDON, Ill., June 17.—The heaviest rain for several years fell here yesterday. The fall was enormous and caused all streams and creeks to overflow their banks. Crops were damaged.

LIGONIER, Ind., June 17.—A cyclone passed through town yesterday, tearing down trees and unroofing houses along its path.

COULD NOT IDENTIFY "SUSPECTS."

Maroney and McDonald Undergo the Scrutiny of Several Chicagoans.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

NEW-YORK, June 17.—The three men who came from Chicago to identify Maroney and McDonald as principals or accomplices in the murder of Dr. Cronin visited the Tombs this morning with authority to see the prisoners. The suspects were placed in line with a score of other prisoners. William H. Hatfield, who sold the furniture found in the cottage where Cronin was murdered; was the first to pass along the line, but he failed to identify either of the men. He was followed by Hartensen, the expressman, E. G. Throckmorton and Deputy Sheriff Williams, all of whom failed to identify the suspects. Maroney and McDonald were then taken back to their cells and the Chicagoans left the prison.

WINNIPEG, Manitoba, June 17.—Last night the Chief of Police arrested Martin Burke, alias Delaney, who is wanted for complicity in the Cronin murder. He was boarding an eastern express and had a ticket for Liverpool. Superintendent Hubbard, of Chicago, who was communicated with, notified the authorities to hold Burke at all hazards.

CHICAGO, June 17.—It is stated by the police that the man arrested at Winnipeg yesterday is Williams, who rented the Carlson cottage and had the furniture moved from No. 117 Clark street to the cottage. When Chief Hubbard was asked for an explanation of the arrest of Burke at Winnipeg, he said: "I refuse positively to say anything about it at this time further than that it is a very important arrest, and that it will be followed by another in this city. However, Burke is the man most wanted of the two." SAN FRANCISCO, June 17.—Harry Black, Woodruff's step-father, in an interview with a Chronicle reporter, says young Black is his stepson. "He is a native of Canada. I formerly lived there and held an important official position. For the past 10 years I have resided in San Francisco. Frank is a wild, hard-scram sort of a boy. From his ninth year he has only brought misery to us. He has brought a cloud into my life and nearly killed his mother by her worrying over him. Four years ago he was paid a visit here. He was ill and we took care of him. When he recovered he stole his mother's gold watch and sold it. Frank is about 28 years of age. He is an innocent-looking boy. I could sit down and talk with him and in three minutes he would be in tears. But the very next day he would steal some article out of the house and sell it. In fact, the boy has always led a dual life. There is a good and a bad side to him. He never could resist temptation of any kind."

SOCIETY SONS OF THE REVOLUTION.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

BOSTON, June 17.—The Society of the Sons of the Revolution met here to-day. Part of the main address delivered is as follows: "The Society of the Sons of the American Revolution rests on a wider basis than military rank and service. Past and future may be as useful to liberty as the sword. By essay and oration, Henry, Adams, and Jefferson accomplished as much for their country as Gates, or Green, or Putnam by the most brilliant exploits of battle. Washington as Commander was no more a patriot and benefactor than Washington as President. Nor must the heroes of the ranks be overlooked. Descendants of the sailor, soldier, and civilian are recognized by our Society. Membership is based on proved patriotic service, however and wherever rendered during the war of the Revolution. Two paths open to our Society. It may look behind rather than before for the golden age of our humanity. And let us not discourage those inclined to venerable fashions. We tolerate ecclesiastical importing foreign dress favorable to their persons although slightly connected with the sublime work of the admired and gratified warriors. But we have a nobler mission than devotion to the antique and esthetic. As our Society grows out of the past of our country, so it may become a potent element in the future. The test of liberty is the power of the citizen to elect rulers and control revenues. Between the Divine right of the people and the Divine right of kings there has ever been a bitter battle. In England, that war led by Charles and Cromwell terminated when Parliament changed the succession and placed William and Mary on the throne. But while the sovereignty of the people was established, by how many social, political, and ecclesiastical obstacles it resisted in Britain? After a hundred years of blood, France a Republic. How hindered still by traditions of monarchy, aristocracy, and empire! What shall we say of Italy, Austria and Germany? Education advances. Ideas march. Liberty will triumph. Nevertheless, progress between Freedom and popular sovereignty, lies a dark and bloody century. Japan has become young with hope. Yet, although stirring in the valley of the shadow of Oriental despotism, China and India are far from their political resurrection. America should stand ready to give to all a help. Progress and sympathy are the conditions of our life. Our country has been exempt from the peculiar trials of other lands. Humanity bettered with us anew. The Atlantic is the barrier between us and the past. Hence on our soil Liberty had an unimpeded growth. New dangers new strength. Colonial struggles made our manhood. The Revolution was our evolution. Nor has growth stopped. We are a century in advance of our ancestors. Our prisons are better, our schools are better, our colleges are better. Steam and electricity have enlarged our views even more than our means of intercommunication. Often in colonial times the jail was a den unfit for wild beasts. To stop their yells manacles were scourged into exhaustion. In many schools knowledge was flogged through the skin into the brain. The courtly turbaned lady could whip her servant with an intolerable cruelty. Party rancor was loud, venomous and unscrupulous. During all the years of his administration no man was more abused than Washington. After his triumphal visit to New England he came back to the demands of office seekers like a modern President. Only ignorance look to that age for the ideal of our Republic."

A Dog Lives Six Weeks Without Food.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

BRISTOL, Pa., June 17.—A dog which was found in a field on Thursday morning had survived six weeks without food. The dog is a valuable setter, belonging to Robert Bruden, and was lost six weeks ago, after Mr. Bruden had been at a furniture sale. The furniture dealer had locked the dog in his barn and left the key in the door. In the neighborhood heard the dog barking for two weeks, and then heard it no more. After a fruitless search in every other direction Mr. Bruden thought of the furniture dealer's barn, and looked in there as a last chance. Here he found the setter, as thin as a single stick, weak, standing up. It, however, soon revived under the stimulating effects of a three-pound beefsteak, and is now as well as ever.

A summary gives the following result: First question: Yes—Senate, 4; House, 23. No—Senate, 8; House, 25. Second question: Yes—Senate, 0; House, 1. Second question: Yes—Senate, 15; House, 47. DULUTH, Minn., June 17.—Regarding the report that the St. Paul & Duluth Railway, in connection with the Lake Superior Transit Company, had made a 54 cent rate between New York and St. Paul, President Mitchell of the Eastern Minnesota, says such a rate, as well as any other reductions that may be announced, will be promptly met by his line. He considers the cut under the rate set by his road needless and wanton, professes ability to cover the Lake route cheaper than other lines, and asserts that the Lake Superior Transit Company is under contract with the Eastern Minnesota to exchange freight on the same terms as with other lines.

PROHIBITION AT ISSUE THIS WEEK.

The state of Pennsylvania will vote on the question of Prohibition to-morrow. Careful and impartial estimates indicate that the measure is doomed to overwhelming defeat. And yet, a reading of the objections of Democratic newspapers, many of them absolutely frantic and grossly abusive, shows that there is great alarm in the only political circles that have a stake in the welfare of the liquor interest. There is the purpose, in this, of course, to make the majority in the negative so large as to discourage future effort in the same line. The election in Rhode Island on the same subject is to take place on Thursday, the 20th. That state has a prohibitory clause in its constitution, and the vote is merely a re-submission of the question to the people. There is no doubt that the law has been poorly enforced in the state which is little more than a compact aggregation of manufacturing cities and towns, but as a three-fifths vote is required to undo as well as to confirm a constitutional provision, the result is more doubtful. The opinion is gaining ground as the day of voting approaches, that Rhode Island will stick to prohibition. Many who voted for the amendment three years ago remember that the previous license law, a very good one, was as defiantly disregarded and violated as prohibition has been since. They are not so much in favor of a constant tinkering of the law as they are of a more vigorous enforcement. This is the prime need in dealing with the liquor question everywhere. Pennsylvania will reject prohibition because her high license law is more thoroughly enforced and is producing more satisfactory results than are realized in any other state in the Union, whether from high license, local option, prohibition or any other form of restriction. The elections in both Pennsylvania and Rhode Island are looked forward to with a great deal of interest, but they are not likely to throw any new light on the question. The defeat in Pennsylvania will only show in a very significant manner the supreme satisfaction with which the high license law is received. The act of re-submission in Rhode Island indicated a consciousness in the Legislature of wide-spread dissatisfaction with a measure that had not been enforced.

As for New York, the question must either be settled by a combination between Prohibitionists and Republicans on the platform of Gen. Clinton B. Fisk, late candidate for the Presidency on the Prohibition ticket, or the Republicans must wait till another gubernatorial election, when they will place a man like Warner Miller in the office now held by the saloon-keepers "one true friend." The Prohibitionists can, by uniting with the Republicans in the election of the Legislature, send the prohibitory amendment to the people in 1890, or they can elect a Legislature that will pass a high license bill over the Governor's veto. Fisk's platform is, briefly stated, "Anything to break the political power of the liquor interest." He is for high license, local option, prohibition or any other scheme of restriction that will reduce the volume of drunkenness, pauperism and crime and add morality and social prosperity. It is a very good platform for every man who does not keep a saloon, run a distillery, or want an office from the Democratic party.

THE AMERICAN SABBATH IN EUROPE.
"The refined Parisian public," we are informed, are disgusted with the American exhibitors at the Exposition, and regard their conduct as not only hypocritical but boorish. Their offense consists in withdrawing their exhibits from the public view on the Sabbath. They would even in the English in their "straight-laced practices." The English merely keep away on Sundays, leaving their goods exposed to the view of the refined Parisians, but without any attendants to explain them, whereas the Americans not only absent themselves but cover up their wares. This is showing scant respect for the French, who hold elections and transact a great volume of public business on Sunday, and who make special use of the day at present for visiting the Exposition. To find the American exhibit closed on that day is a good deal like the play of Hamlet with Hamlet left out, for the American portion is the principal attraction. It is hardly surprising that there are dissatisfaction and disgust among the French.

It would have been a decided triumph for the advocates of a "Continental Sabbath" if American exhibitors on reaching Paris had surrendered their convictions and abated their regard for the American Sabbath to silence the European clamor. We are very glad and very proud of them for their firmness. One of the most valuable and instructive exhibits that could be carried to Europe from this country is the American manner of keeping the Sabbath. The people of the old world are learning from it that this sort of Sabbath is national over here, and not a matter of sect. The lesson of a great nation sacredly observing one day in seven, and yet able to evolve greater prosperity for the people in general by attention to business and industry in the other six than Europe is realizing from almost ceaseless labor and no recognized days or hours of rest is likely to make a lasting impression. The Sabbath is a great agent not only of Christianity, but of social, moral and material progress and happiness.

HIGH LICENSE IN PENNSYLVANIA.
While Gov. Hill is firm in his opinion that a very mild measure of high license would do immeasurable harm in this state and he of no benefit to anybody, the Philadelphia Record, just as ardent and uncompromising in its Democracy as our Governor, gives a glowing picture of the beneficent results of a very high and very rigid license law in Pennsylvania. We learn from it that in a single year, from 1887 to 1888, the number of licensed saloons in the state was reduced from 14,553 to 7,724—nearly one half. Simultaneously the public revenue from retail liquor licenses was increased from $976,179 in 1887 to $1,835,094 in 1888—nearly double. In 1887, under high license, the Philadelphia saloons paid into the state treasury $285,680; last year, under high license, with 4,326 less saloons in the city, the state treasury took in $169,100 and the city treasury $304,464—a total of $708,564. This is the financial result.

The moral effect is equally satisfactory to the Record, which states that high license cut down the number of legalized drinking places in Philadelphia from 5,773 to 1,205. Most of the places shut up by it were in factory or workmen's residence neighborhoods. Under the old tax system there were from 1,000 to 1,500 unlicensed saloons; now there are not any, to speak of. With them have disappeared the 200 odd basement "dives" which were for years such a shameful and pestilential feature of Philadelphia life. Lewis D. Vail, the legal adviser of the Law and Order Society, says there is less than one-half the drunkenness in Philadelphia than there used to be under low license. Selling to minors and Sunday drinking in saloons are, practically, evils of the past. "A license to sell liquor is now so precious a thing," explains the Record, "that its possessor dares not risk its loss by even the slightest violation of the law." Police arrests for all offenses have fallen off 40 per cent, the decrease in crimes of violence being especially marked; commitments to the House of Correction have fallen off 50 per cent; commitments to the county prison almost as much. "There are now in this city," says the Record, "hundreds of localities in which it was not safe to go after midnight thirteen months ago which have been redeemed, and which are now as safe as any. It is now the almost universal opinion of the bench of this county that high license has done more to decrease the volume and activity of crime in Philadelphia than can be appreciated by the general public."

New York is denied all of these invaluable benefits by the power of one man in an office which he is unfit to hold—David B. Hill. Except for him, Democrats would have combined with Republicans in the Legislature for the passage and enforcement of a high license law like that in Pennsylvania. But the liquor interest elected Hill and commands his use of the veto power for its exclusive benefit. How long are the decent people of the state going to be patient with this enemy of sobriety, decency and peace? How long will they wait before electing a Legislature that dares to pass a high license bill over his veto?

PUBLIC OPINION.
Governor Hill is truly a remarkable man. His latest performance may be a proof of his versatility, but it is not calculated to increase respect for his good sense. He summoned the Executive Committee of the State Association Press before him on Friday, and gave them a "severe talking to" because every word of his numerous veto messages and memorandums had not been telegraphed all over the state, and the consequences of such a contemptible act. Really Mr. Hill's self-assertion is passing all bounds.—New York Tribune.

The Johnstown sufferer is the latest fraud that is endeavoring to impose upon the charitable. In dealing with persons who claim to have lost their all in the great flood it should be remembered that the total number of survivors who have left Johnstown is less than 1,600, and that all of these were sent to friends or relatives who were able to care for them. There are probably not over a dozen persons in the country now outside of the immediate vicinity of the devastated district who have any legitimate claim upon charity on account of the flood.—New York Sun.

The position taken by Senator Chandler's New Hampshire organ, that the most friendly personal relations may exist between leading Republicans and leading Democrats without occasioning any reasonable distrust of the party really of either, is all right enough, but there are a good many people who take their politics so seriously as to prevent their taking this view. There once lived in Boston an eminently pious and respectable gentleman who was a very ardent Whig. Being asked, once upon a time, whether he was acquainted with another eminently respectable gentleman who happened to be a Democrat, he bristled up and replied: "No, sir, I don't know any Democrats, and what's more, sir, I don't know anybody who knows any Democrats."—Boston Herald.

Colonel Calvin S. Brice, is going to have a herculean job whipping the "boys" back into line. There are rumors of a defection in the dyed-in-wool state of Texas, and there is a shortage in Kentucky of over 14,000 Democratic votes since 1880.—Troy Telegram.

Perhaps it was lurking desire to "lay out" the Republican newspapers of Albany that induced the Governor to attempt the muzzling of the Associated Press. Your predecessor had a hard time, David. You are not going to whine where he was silent, are you?—Albany Express.

Statesmanship in a Buggy.
[Washington dispatch to Baltimore Sun.]
Late on Monday afternoon a one-horse buggy was driven up to the Hotel Normandie, on the corner of Fifteenth and I streets. The driver, who only occupied a seat, stoutly built man of pallid complexion. Scarcely one of the hundreds of people who walked and drove on the populous thoroughfare had the least idea who the man was. He was the President of the United States. He alighted from the vehicle, and sent a message into the hotel by one of his retainers. He stood on the sidewalk for probably ten minutes, and in the meantime several gentlemen who came along and recognized him stopped and exchanged the customary salutations. Then another man, taller and of much slighter build, descended the hotel steps. He extended his hand, and after a moment's conversation, the two stepped into the buggy, and the President, holding the reins, they drove off into the country and did not return until a late hour. The President's companion was much more pallid than he, but his eyes shone with a glittering intensity. He was the President of the United States. In that ride by moonlight and under the trees more affairs of state were discussed and settled than in a dozen Cabinet meetings.

Is There No Pennsylvania Apple Butter?
[From the New York Sun.]
Even disaster has come phases and charity is sometimes humorous. A funny thing about the Johnstown horror was the extent to which the pitying and generous heart of the country yielded up jam for the relief of the sufferers. Meat was scarce, there was rarely any butter, milk could be got but infrequently, and sugar was always lacking when milk was to be had, while fruit was worth its weight in gold, but there was always plenty of jam. Bread and jam was the staple diet of the greater part of the population. Raspberry jam, strawberry jam, blackberry jam, orange jam, apple jam, peach jam and cherry jam, every kind of jam except jam-jams could be had for the asking by any sufferer. It is doubtful if any one man, except a jam manufacturer, ever saw so many different kinds of jam as were displayed upon the shelves of the Johnstown relief stores.

PROHIBITION AT ISSUE THIS WEEK.

The state of Pennsylvania will vote on the question of Prohibition to-morrow. Careful and impartial estimates indicate that the measure is doomed to overwhelming defeat. And yet, a reading of the objections of Democratic newspapers, many of them absolutely frantic and grossly abusive, shows that there is great alarm in the only political circles that have a stake in the welfare of the liquor interest. There is the purpose, in this, of course, to make the majority in the negative so large as to discourage future effort in the same line. The election in Rhode Island on the same subject is to take place on Thursday, the 20th. That state has a prohibitory clause in its constitution, and the vote is merely a resubmission of the question to the people. There is no doubt that the law has been poorly enforced in the state which is little more than a compact aggregation of manufacturing cities and towns, but as a three-fifths vote is required to undo as well as to confirm a constitutional provision, the result is more doubtful. The opinion is gaining ground as the day of voting approaches, that Rhode Island will stick to prohibition. Many who voted for the amendment three years ago remember that the previous license law, a very good one, was as defiantly disregarded and violated as prohibition has been since. They are not so much in favor of a constant tinkering of the law as they are of a more vigorous enforcement. This is the prime need in dealing with the liquor question everywhere. Pennsylvania will reject prohibition because her high license law is more thoroughly enforced and is producing more satisfactory results than are realized in any other state in the Union, whether from high license, local option, prohibition or any other form of restriction. The elections in both Pennsylvania and Rhode Island are looked forward to with a great deal of interest, but they are not likely to throw any new light on the question. The defeat in Pennsylvania will only show in a very significant manner the supreme satisfaction with which the high license law is received. The act of resubmission in Rhode Island indicated a consciousness in the Legislature of wide-spread dissatisfaction with a measure that had not been enforced.

As for New York, the question must either be settled by a combination between Prohibitionists and Republicans on the platform of Gen. Clinton B. Fisk, late candidate for the Presidency on the Prohibition ticket, or the Republicans must wait till another gubernatorial election, when they will place a man like Warner Miller in the office now held by the saloon-keepers "one true friend." The Prohibitionists can, by uniting with the Republicans in the election of the Legislature, send the prohibitory amendment to the people in 1890, or they can elect a Legislature that will pass a high license bill over the Governor's veto. Fisk's platform is, briefly stated, "Anything to break the political power of the liquor interest." He is for high license, local option, prohibition or any other scheme of restriction that will reduce the volume of drunkenness, pauperism and crime and aid morality and social prosperity. It is a very good platform for every man who does not keep a saloon, run a distillery, or want an office from the Democratic party.

THE AMERICAN SABBATH IN EUROPE.
"The refined Parisian public," we are informed, are disgusted with the American exhibitors at the Exposition, and regard their conduct as not only hypocritical but boorish. Their offense consists in withdrawing their exhibits from the public view on the Sabbath. They outdo even the English in their "straight-laced practices." The English merely keep away on Sundays, leaving their goods exposed to the view of the refined Parisians, but without any attempt to explain them, whereas the Americans not only absent themselves but cover up their wares. This is showing scant respect for the French, who hold elections and transact a great volume of public business on Sunday, and who make special use of the day at present for visiting the Exposition. To find the American exhibit closed on that day is a good deal like the play of Hamlet with Hamlet left out, for the American portion is the principal attraction. It is hardly surprising that there are dissatisfaction and disgust among the French.

It would have been a decided triumph for the advocates of a "Continental Sabbath" if American exhibitors on reaching Paris had surrendered their convictions and abated their regard for the American Sabbath to silence the European clamor. We are very glad and very proud of them for their firmness. One of the most valuable and instructive exhibits that could be carried to Europe from this country is the American manner of keeping the Sabbath. The people of the old world are learning from it that this sort of Sabbath is national over here, and not a matter of sect. The lesson of a great nation sacredly observing one day in seven, and yet able to evolve greater prosperity for the people in general by attention to business and industry in the other six than Europe is realizing from almost ceaseless labor and no recognized days or hours of rest is likely to make a lasting impression. The Sabbath is a great agent not only of Christianity, but of social, moral and material progress and happiness.

HIGH LICENSE IN PENNSYLVANIA.
While Gov. Hill is firm in his opinion that a very mild measure of high license would do immeasurable harm in this state and be of no benefit to anybody, the Philadelphia Record, just as ardent and uncompromising in its Democracy as our Governor, gives a glowing picture of the beneficent results of a very high and very rigid license law in Pennsylvania. We learn from it that in a single year, from 1887 to 1888, the number of licensed saloons in the state was reduced from 14,553 to 7,724—nearly one half. Simultaneously the public revenue from retail liquor licenses was increased from $976,179 in 1887 to $1,832,994 in 1888—nearly double. In 1887, under high license, the Philadelphia saloons paid into the state treasury $285,680; last year, under high license, with 4,326 less saloons in the city, the state treasury took in $169,100 and the city treasury $534,464—a total of $703,564. This is the financial result.

The moral effect is equally satisfactory to the Record, which states that high license cut down the number of legalized drinking places in Philadelphia from 5,773 to 1,205. Most of the places shut up by it were in factory or workmen's residence neighborhoods. Under the old tax system there were from 1,000 to 1,500 unlicensed saloons; now there are not any to speak of. With them have disappeared the 200 odd basement "dives" which were for years such a shameful and pestilential feature of Philadelphia life. Lewis D. Vail, the legal adviser of the Law and Order Society, says there is less than one-half the drunkenness in Philadelphia than there used to be under low license. Selling to minors and Sunday drinking in saloons are, practically, evils of the past. "A license to sell liquor is now so precious a thing," explains the Record, "that its possessor dares not risk its loss by even the slightest violation of the law." Police arrests for all offenses have fallen off 40 per cent, the decrease in crimes of violence being especially marked; commitments to the House of Correction have fallen off 50 per cent; commitments to the county prison almost as much. "There are now in this city," says the Record, "hundreds of localities in which it was not safe to go after midnight thirteen months ago which have been redeemed, and which are now as safe as any. It is now the almost universal opinion of the bench of this county that high license has done more to decrease the volume and activity of crime in Philadelphia than can be appreciated by the general public."

New York is denied all of these invaluable benefits by the power of one man in an office which he is unfit to hold—David B. Hill. Except for him, Democrats would have combined with Republicans in the Legislature for the passage and enforcement of a high license law like that in Pennsylvania. But the liquor interest elected Hill and commands his use of the veto power for its exclusive benefit. How long are the decent people of the state going to be patient with this enemy of sobriety, decency and peace? How long will they wait before electing a Legislature that dares to pass a high license bill over his veto?

The Governor threatened to "use his influence" against the Associated Press in case his grievance is not atoned for. That is an awful threat, and the consequences are appalling to the public. Really Mr. Hill's self-assertion is passing all bounds.—New-York Tribune.

PROHIBITION AT ISSUE THIS WEEK.

The state of Pennsylvania will vote on the question of Prohibition to-morrow. Careful and impartial estimates indicate that the measure is doomed to overwhelming defeat. And yet, a reading of the objections of Democratic newspapers, many of them absolutely frantic and grossly abusive, shows that there is great alarm in the only political circles that have a stake in the welfare of the liquor interest. There is the purpose, in this, of course, to make the majority in the negative so large as to discourage future effort in the same line. The election in Rhode Island on the same subject is to take place on Thursday, the 20th. That state has a prohibitory clause in its constitution, and the vote is merely a resubmission of the question to the people. There is no doubt that the law has been poorly enforced in the state which is little more than a compact aggregation of manufacturing cities and towns, but as a three-fifths vote is required to undo as well as to confirm a constitutional provision, the result is more doubtful. The opinion is gaining ground as the day of voting approaches, that Rhode Island will stick to prohibition. Many who voted for the amendment three years ago remember that the previous license law, a very good one, was as defiantly disregarded and violated as prohibition has been since. They are not so much in favor of a constant tinkering of the law as they are of a more vigorous enforcement. This is the prime need in dealing with the liquor question everywhere. Pennsylvania will reject prohibition because her high license law is more thoroughly enforced and is producing more satisfactory results than are realized in any other state in the Union, whether from high license, local option, prohibition or any other form of restriction. The elections in both Pennsylvania and Rhode Island are looked forward to with a great deal of interest, but they are not likely to throw any new light on the question. The defeat in Pennsylvania will show in a very significant manner the supreme satisfaction with which the high license law is received. The act of resubmission in Rhode Island indicated a consciousness in the Legislature of wide-spread dissatisfaction with a measure that had not been enforced.

As for New York, the question must either be settled by a combination between Prohibitionists and Republicans on the platform of Gen. Clinton B. Fisk, late candidate for the Presidency on the Prohibition ticket, or the Republicans must wait till another gubernatorial election, when they will place a man like Warner Miller in the office now held by the saloon-keepers "one true friend." The Prohibitionists can, by uniting with the Republicans in the election of the Legislature, send the prohibitory amendment to the people in 1890, or they can elect a Legislature that will pass a high license bill over the Governor's veto. Fisk's platform is, briefly stated, "Anything to break the political power of the liquor interest." He is for high license, local option, prohibition or any other scheme of restriction that will reduce the volume of drunkenness, pauperism and crime and add morality and social prosperity. It is a very good platform for every man who does not keep a saloon, run a distillery, or want an office from the Democratic party.

THE AMERICAN SABBATH IN EUROPE.

"The refined Parisian public," we are informed, are disgusted with the American exhibitors at the Exposition, and regard their conduct as not only hypocritical but boorish. Their offense consists in withdrawing their exhibits from the public view on the Sabbath. They would even have the English in their "straight-laced practices." The English merely keep away on Sundays, leaving their exhibits exposed to the view of the refined Parisians, but without any attendants to explain them, whereas the Americans not only absent themselves but cover up their wares. This is showing scant respect for the French, who hold elections and transact a great volume of public business on Sunday, and who make special use of the day at present for visiting the Exposition. To find the American exhibit closed on that day is a good deal like the play of Hamlet with Hamlet left out, for the American portion is the principal attraction. It is hardly surprising that there are dissatisfaction and disgust among the French.

It would have been a decided triumph for the advocates of a "Continental Sabbath" if American exhibitors on reaching Paris had surrendered their convictions and abated their regard for the American Sabbath to silence the European clamor. We are very glad and very proud of them for their firmness. One of the most valuable and instructive exhibits that could be carried to Europe from this country is the American manner of keeping the Sabbath. The people of the old world are learning from it that sort of Sabbath is national over here, and not a matter of sect. The lesson of great nation sacredly observing one day in seven, and yet able to evolve greater prosperity for the people in general by attention to business and industry in the other six than Europe is realizing from almost ceaseless labor and no recognized days or hours of rest is likely to make a lasting impression. The Sabbath is a great agent not only of Christianity, but of social, moral and material progress and happiness.

HIGH LICENSE IN PENNSYLVANIA.

While Gov. Hill is firm in his opinion that a very mild measure of high license would do immeasurable harm in this state and be of no benefit to anybody, the Philadelphia Record, just as ardent and uncompromising in its Democracy as our Governor, gives a glowing picture of the beneficent results of a very high and very rigid license law in Pennsylvania. We learn from it that in a single year, from 1887 to 1888, the number of licensed saloons in the state was reduced from 14,553 to 7,724—nearly one half. Simultaneously the public revenue from retail liquor licenses was increased from $976,179 in 1887 to $1,835,964 in 1888—nearly double. In 1887, under high license, the Philadelphia saloons paid into the state treasury $435,680; last year, under high license, with 4,326 saloons in the city, the state treasury took in $109,100, and the city treasury $334,464—a total of $703,564. This is the financial result. The moral effect is equally satisfactory to the Record, which states that high license cut down the number of legalized drinking places in Philadelphia from 5,773 to 1,205. Most of the places shut up by it were in factory or workmen's residence neighborhoods. Under the old tax system there were from 1,000 to 1,500 unlicensed saloons; now there are not any, to speak of. With them have disappeared the 200 odd basement "dives" which were for years such a shameful and pestilential feature of Philadelphia life. Lewis D. Vail, the legal adviser of the Law and Order Society, says there is less than one-half the drunkenness in Philadelphia than there used to be under low license. Selling to minors and Sunday drinking in saloons are, practically, evils of the past. "A license to sell liquor is now so precious a thing," explains the Record, "that its possessor dares not risk its loss by even the slightest violation of the law." Police arrests for all offenses have fallen off 40 per cent, the decrease in crimes of violence being especially marked; commitments to the House of Correction have fallen off 50 per cent; commitments to the county prison almost as much. "There are now in this city," says the Record, "hundreds of localities in which it was not safe to go after midnight thirteen months ago which have been redeemed, and which are now as safe as any. It is now the almost universal opinion of the bench of this county that high license has done more to decrease the volume and activity of crime in Philadelphia than can be appreciated by the general public."

New York is denied all of these invaluable benefits by the power of one man in an office which he is unfit to hold—David B. Hill. Except for him, Democrats would have combined with Republicans in the Legislature for the passage and enforcement of a high license law like that in Pennsylvania. But the liquor interest elected Hill and commands his use of the veto power for its exclusive benefit. How long are the decent people of the state going to be patient with this enemy of sobriety, decency and peace? How long will they wait before electing a Legislature that dares to pass a high license bill over his veto?

PUBLIC OPINION.

Governor Hill is truly a remarkable man. His latest performance may be a proof of his versatility, but it is not calculated to increase respect for his good sense. He summoned the Executive Committee of the State Association Press before him on Friday, and gave them a "severe talking to" because every word of his numerous veto messages and memoranda had not been telegraphed all over the state, and also because the news of dissensions in the Democracy of Albany county was sent out a few weeks ago. The Governor threatened to "veto" his opponents against the Associated Press in case his grievance is not atoned for. That is an awful threat, and the consequences are appalling to contemplate. Really Mr. Hill's self-assertion is passing all bounds.—New York Tribune.

The Johnstown sufferer is the latest fraud that is endeavoring to impose upon the charitable. In dealing with persons who claim to have lost their all in the great flood it should be remembered that the total number of the sufferers who have left Johnstown is less than 1,600, and that all of these were sent to friends or relatives who were able to care for them. There are probably not over a dozen persons in the country now, outside of the immediate vicinity of the devastated district, who have any legitimate claim upon charity on account of the flood.—New York Sun.

The position taken by Senator Chandler's New-Hampshire organ, that the most friendly personal relations may exist between leading Republicans and leading Democrats without occasioning any reasonable distrust of the party fealty of either, is all right enough, but there are a good many people who take their politics so seriously as to prevent their taking this view. There once lived in Boston an elderly and respectable-looking man, who had a hard time, David. You are not going to white where he was silent, are you?—Albany Express.

Statesmanship in a Buggy. [Washington dispatch to Baltimore Sun.] Late on Monday afternoon a one-horse buggy was driven up to the Hotel Normandie, on the corner of Fifteenth and I streets. The driver and only occupant was a short, stoutly built man of middle complexion. Scarcely one of the hundreds of people who walked and drove on the populous thoroughfare had the least idea who the man was. He was the President of the United States. He alighted from the buggy and went a message into the hotel by one of its retainers. He stood on the sidewalk for probably ten minutes, and in the meantime several gentlemen who came along and recognized him stopped and exchanged the customary salutations. Then another man, taller and of much slighter build, descended the hotel steps. He extended his hand, and after a moment's conversation, the two stepped into the buggy and the President, holding the reins, they drove off into the country and did not return until a late hour. The President's companion was much more palatial than he, but his eyes shone with a glittering lustre. He was the President of the United States. In that ride by moonlight and under the trees more affairs of state were discussed and settled than in a dozen Cabinet meetings.

There No Pennsylvania Apple Butter? [From the New York Sun.] Even disaster has comic phases and charity is sometimes humor. A funny thing about the Johnstown horror was the extent to which the pitying and generous heart of the country yielded up jam, for the relief of the sufferers. Meat was scarce, there was rarely any butter, milk could be got but infrequently, and sugar was always lacking when milk was to be had, while fruit was worth its weight in gold, but there was always plenty of jam. Bread and jam was the staple diet of the greater part of the population. Raspberry jam, strawberry jam, blackberry jam, orange jam, apple jam, peach jam and cherry jam, every kind, except jam made of wild fruit, could be had for the asking by any sufferer. It is doubtful if any one man, except a jam manufacturer, ever saw so many different kinds of jam as were displayed upon the shelves of the Johnstown relief stores.

DRAWN IN.

Now Suffering, Misery and the Seeds of Death are Taken into the Body Unknown To the Unconscious Victim.

"It is a wonder people live as long as they do," said one of the leading physicians of New-York, when conversing with some newspaper friends recently. "Every breath that is taken contains poison. Millions of germs, so small they cannot be seen by the naked eye, are drawn into the lungs, the throat, the stomach, and while many of them die, thousands of them live and feed upon the body and cause what is called disease. Germs are the source of all disease; kill the germs and you cure the disease."

So interested were his listeners with the above remarks that the doctor continued: "I am naturally asking what will kill these germs? I am sorry to say, only a few things. The surest safeguard against all germs is pure whiskey—pure, mind you. Germs do not thrive where it is used judiciously. Unfortunately there is but little pure whiskey to be had now. The one which I can absolutely recommend and find no fault with, I have analyzed it carefully and found no foul oil, no impurities, and nothing that could harm even a child. Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey is also recommended by such medical authorities as Dr. Henry A. Mott, Prof. Wm. F. Cutler, Dr. Caruwell and others. It is a medicine and not a beverage. It is a medicine in its strength, restoring and beneficial, and is entirely free from any medicinal ingredients. Under no circumstances, even as a medicine, can it be used, and does not allow any druggist to persuade you to take any other."

NOTES ABOUT CURRENT LITERATURE.

What Brainy Men and Women Find to Write About These Days.

William Dean Howells will continue in Harper's Magazine for July the discussion of the dramatic outlook in America begun by Brauder Matthews in the number for June. He says: "I believe that the American drama, like that of a novel, for either in more and more a series of sketches, of anecdotes, of suggestions, with less and less allegiance to any hard and fast intrigue." He reiterates his view as follows: "Again we wish to put forward our heresy that for a play a plot of close texture is no more necessary than for a novel, that for either, in dealing with modern life, it would be an anachronism." Praising the work of Messrs. Thompson, Harrigan, Burgess and Hoyt, he says: "We do not at all pretend that we have produced a great drama; but we do pretend that in such prolongations of sketches as they have given us, they have laid the right beginning of an American drama." He adds: "We believe, moreover, that a National drama can arise with us only as it has arisen with other peoples; that is, out of some such wild native growths as these authors are cultivating." He agrees with A. M. Palmer upon the absence of any really good play, and to the drama, and reviving the manager's reminder that this taste exists only in countries where "dramatic art has for centuries been fostered by the people, and oftentimes protected and patronized by intelligent governments," he says: "Perhaps we may yet, when the people have made their own play, have a municipal theatre in every city and town, sustained by a tax, where the best dramas may be seen for a tenth of the price one now pays to see the worst."

John R. Spears, of the New York Sun—whose series, "The Port of Missing Ships," and "The Called the Parson," in Harper's have been highly praised—will try a new field, in the July issue of that periodical, with a tale of railway life, called "The Story of a Lost Car," the plot of which hangs upon the mysterious disappearance of a car-load of silver on the Lake Shore Road.

Winchester Cathedral will be described by Mrs. Vanlenselaar in the July Century.

CONCERNING THE EYES OF CHILDREN.
A Mother Makes a Number of Suggestions to Parents to Care for Their Children's Eyes.

[From the Philadelphia Press.]
A mother sends the following kindly, wise words: "Allow me to say a few words in regard to the children's eyes. Years ago, when the children studied their lessons from their books, we did not hear very much about their eyes giving out. Let us consult our black-boards and see what they can tell us about this world-wide subject. Dear parents and guardians, all over the land, how many hours through the day are your little children sitting in school staring at a black-board, upon which are placed by the teacher most of the lessons of the day, many times the lines being so fine and pale they could not be easily read more than half or two-thirds of the time, and the room, but the children are required to see them all the way across and from the remotest corners. Many of the children, when first looking at the board, do not see much of anything, but by looking very sharp for a few seconds the lines reveal themselves. This, my friends, is the case with all strained eyes, possibly no eyes at all, it all depending on the severity of the strain. Even when the work is quite distinct, when the eyes are clear and bright, and the board shows the lines to wave and flicker, and especially in this case when the light is poor and the ventilation bad. Anything put on the board for children to see, whether old or young, should have large proportions and sharp lines. Lines should be no extra, but fort will have to be made to discover it. There is a great difference in eyes; one child will readily see what another could not without the aid of a glass. I know whereof I speak for my own eyes were nearly destroyed through the same practice, and I know others who have suffered a like fate."

A High Sense of the Proprieties.
[From the Middletown Argus.]
A representative of the National Water Purifying Company, which is anxious to sell Newburgh a water filtering apparatus, appeared before the City's Board of Water Commissioners at its meeting Monday evening, and after enlarging upon the merits of the apparatus which his company has for sale, invited the members of the Board to visit Excelsior, N. H., where the company has a filtering plant in active operation, saying that his company would pay all the expenses of the trip. This proposition quickly developed the fact that the members of the Board had no disposition to be deadheaded in this or any other enterprise, for they soon gave the filter company's representative to understand that if they visited any filtering plant they would do it at their own expense.

The properties of official life is as refreshing as, we regret to say, it is unusual.

Brought Up on the Bottle.
[From the Middletown Argus.]
A colt but four or five days old at the stables of Brisk Schoonmaker, on Henry-street, is an object of no little interest as well as sympathy to those who have seen it. The little fellow is disowned by his dam, and consequently has to be fed on milk made for calves, and like "Tip" will have to be brought up on a bottle. He is a remarkably handsome colt, and a most rosy bred one, his sire being Harrison Mills' Sweepstakes and his dam by Knickerbocker, second dam by Fiddler, behind which looms up a pedigree that is king of the horse world. The little colt will live and thrive to do credit to his generous ancestry.

The Trustees of the British Museum will publish in the course of a few weeks the new editions of catalogues connected with the reading-room. The more important of these is the third edition of the most valuable catalogue of books of reference on the shelves of the reading-room. The first edition, containing about 20,000 titles, was published by the late Winter Jones in 1859, and his interesting preface giving the history of the room down to that date will be republished in the new edition. The second edition appeared in 1871, and the new one is rendered necessary by the introduction of new books and new editions from time to time in the reading-room. Moreover, it is compiled on a new and more convenient plan. About 1871 a fresh selection has been made of about 20,000 of the books, and the new edition, and there have been placed in the lower gallery of the reading-room, where they are at all times at the readers' hands. A special catalogue of these books was published in 1886.

Reports from other cities indicate improvement in trade at Cleveland and Pittsburgh, and in the wood and groceries trades at Philadelphia. Collections show no improvement on the whole, but complaints more frequently to the clothing trade than to any other, and some continuing embarrassment there is a legacy from the last open winter. In dry goods there are clear signs of improvement, and some bleak conditions have been advanced, while brown goods recently reduced in price have in some instances been put back. Especial activity in leather has resulted from the floods in regions where many tanneries are located, and crop leather has advanced fully two cents since June 1. The wholesale of Pittsburgh is fair, with factories generally in full operation, but a number of the smaller coppers have shut down for the dull season. For anthracite coal there is a better demand with reduced output.

The draft of the Samoa Treaty, according to a Berlin dispatch, guarantees an autonomous administration of the island under the joint control of Germany and America, England acting as arbitrator in the event of differences arising. The Samoans are to elect their own King and Viceroy and are to be represented in a Senate composed of the principal chiefs and chambers elected by the people. Samoa is to have the right of levying duties of every kind. The treaty also stipulates that the Germans shall receive a money indemnity for their losses. A special court will be appointed to deal with the land question. The Americans made their adhesion conditional upon the ratification of the treaty by the United States Senate. The treaty will therefore, obtain in Samoa until December.

The Supreme Court of Iowa has just made a decision in a curious case—that of Nancy Miller vs. her husband for breach of contract. The two had had quarrels. To prevent their recurrence, it was agreed that if Mrs. Miller would look closely after all the wants of the family, her husband would pay her $200 yearly. Past rows were to be forgotten. Mrs. Miller did her part, but her husband failed to pay, and she sued for the money. The Court held that the contract was void, because against public policy.

Dr. Peyrand, a consulting physician at Vichy, claims to have discovered an efficient method for treating rabies. By injecting rabbits with the essence of the herb called "tansey," he produced what he called hydrophobic intoxication, or something very similar, and with virus thus obtained he mingled 10 per cent. of chloral. He injected several animals which had hydrophobia with this prophylactic, and was successful in curing four out of six.

Five thousand pounds in gold disappeared in mysterious fashion from the Orient steam-er Iberia, on a recent voyage home from Australia to London. Five packages containing bullion were placed in the steamer's special room on its leaving Sydney, and this room was not opened again till the Iberia had arrived in London. There was not a sign that the lock had been tampered with, yet one bag containing 5,000 sovereigns was found to be missing.

A Boy Bitten by Dogs—The Propensity to "Beat Down" Illustrated—Feline Longevity—A Story of a Hollow Man's Demise—Non-Salt in a $20,000 Damage Suit.

Dr. A. H. Mambert was called upon on Saturday by Patrick Leonard, of this City, to dress the wounds of a 10-year-old orphan boy. It seems a few days ago the boy, who was employed on a Delaware & Hudson Canal boat, was sent to a farm-house near Honesdale to procure milk. When he entered the farm yard he was set upon by two hounds. The boy in attempting to get away from the dogs crawled under a table, but was dragged out by the dogs and his body terribly lacerated. Dr. Mambert said he did the two surgeons who were first called to attend to the lad's injuries spent over two hours in the work. It was necessary for them to take 20 stitches in the boy's scalp alone and the scalp wounds are only a portion of the injuries which are in various portions of the lad's body. Dr. Mambert spent more than an hour in dressing the injuries. He says the case is one of the worst of the kind he ever encountered in his practice.

This City has its quota of women who when they go shopping try to beat down the price. One day recently one of this class entered a grocery store and looked at some cabbage, the price of which was from five to 10 cents a head. The dealer knew his customer and resolved for once to give her no opportunity to try and beat down. Picking out the biggest head of cabbage in the pile, he asked the price of it and was told a nickel. This startled her and she looked hard at the dealer. But the habit was strong with her. Picking up a second large head she said: "Can't you give me the two heads for five cents?" "No," he replied. "If you want any cabbage now you will have to pay 10 cents a head for it."

If the Rev. "Ed."—sometimes he signs "Ed." and sometimes "Eddie"—Ransford had taken a walk along the docks here on Sunday forenoon he would have witnessed a sight that would have caused him to blush for having made the assertion that cannibals were little better than beasts. On the top of a cabin were a father, mother and two children. The man was reading a Bible and the woman was asking her children questions from a catechism. All were neatly dressed and there was not the slightest sign about them that would lead a person to believe that they were the savages that Ransford has pictured them.

Philip Riley, son of John Riley, of Stony Hollow, died in New York City on Saturday morning. He was engaged unloading stone from a vessel the day previous. Then he expirated blood. On Saturday he died. The body was brought to Stony Hollow on Sunday afternoon. The funeral was held on Sunday. It was largely attended.

The result was that Sunday was the quietest day ever known in the village."

IN REFERENCE TO MAKING ARRESTS.

Some One Should Have Authority to Arrest Disreputable Persons Here.

The case of Agnus Schoonmaker, of Wawarsing, who was arrested on Thursday last by Officers Barry and Sullivan has attracted considerable attention. THE FREEMAN has taken some pains to ascertain all the facts in regard to the arrest. It is undoubtedly true that the officers had no warrant at the time of the arrest, but subsequently obtained one. From officers of the Delaware & Hudson Canal Company it is learned that Schoonmaker was very abusive in that office, and advised Cameron, who had previously been arrested and fined by Recorder Hussey, not to pay his fine, that the officers were trying to rob him. After leaving the company's office, Officers Barry and Sullivan said that Schoonmaker tried to release the prisoner Cameron, before his fine was paid, and therefore they arrested him. If it is true that the constables in this City have no authority to arrest drunken men who are disturbing the peace without first going to the Recorder to get a warrant, then they cannot be relied upon to keep order throughout the City. Some one should have authority to arrest disreputable persons without waiting for tedious forms of law.

WHAT IS BEING DONE BY CHURCH MEN AND WOMEN.

A Colored Man's Plea for an Orphan Asylum—A Sunday School Anniversary—A Kingston Preacher Talks About Telling Falsehoods—W. C. T. U. of Ulster County.

The auditorium of the Fair-Street Reformed Church, Kingston, was elaborately decorated with flags and flowers yesterday in honor of the fortieth anniversary of the establishment of the Sunday School attached to the Church organization. The following programme was rendered:

Organ Voluntary, Arthur Snyder; Duet, "The Church," by the School; Sacred Overture, "Onward Go," by the School; Prayer, "Is It Well With My Soul?" recitation by the Primary Class—Forty Years, Song—Prima, "Glad Day Coming"; Recitation—"Shining Way"; Song—Primary Class; Recitation—"Memorial"; Recitation—"Lost Diadem"; Recitation—"Yield Not"; "Shining Shore"; Singing by the School—"Shining Shore"; Reading in Concert—"Thanksgiving" By the School.

Address—By the Pastor, "What a Friend We Have in Jesus"; Brief Review of the Past, Arthur Snyder; Singing by the School—"O, Be Over Yonder."

In his review, Superintendent G. B. Merritt said that from giving $17.34 a year the school now contributes to missions alone in a single year $300. The average for three-quarters of the time the school had been established was $200 per year. A record kept for 20 years shows the Sunday School had only cost the church $200. Eighty per cent of the additions to the church come from the Sunday School. Only one name of the charter members is now on the rolls, that of Elijah Dubois. The address of the Rev. S. D. Noyes was interesting. The reports showed the school has 49 officers, teachers and helpers. Three members of the Sunday School died during the past year—the Rev. Henry McGiffert, J. D. Miner and Christine Olney.

At the close of morning service in the First Reformed Church, Kingston, on Sunday, a colored man named Johnson, in homely but effective language, made an appeal for contributions to the Howard Orphan Asylum for Colored Children in Brooklyn. He deprecated the use of the term "colored," and said he was only talking about "black children," because there are only two colors, white and black. This asylum cared for 115 orphans children, between the ages of two and 12 years, during 1888. He alluded to the fact that 48 of these children had the measles at one time. "I tell you how it is with your own children and can understand how hard it was for us to keep so many in bed. We lost three."

About a Judge and Two Lawyers.

The following story was told in this City to-day: An up-town lawyer went to Poughkeepsie to make a motion in a case before Judge Barnard. The lawyer who was to appear in opposition to the motion accompanied him. On reaching Poughkeepsie the lawyer opposed to the motion stopped in a restaurant and the other went on to ask the Judge not to adjourn until hearing their arguments. As the lawyer who was to make the motion entered the court room the Judge said: "Quiet! The motion is made. Do for you?" "I have a motion to make," replied the lawyer, but my friend who will oppose it stopped to get a lunch." "O, never mind that," said the Judge, "go on and make your motion; I will hear the motion as made. When the lawyer finished the Judge said: "You may go and inform your friend he need not come. The motion is denied."

MEN, MATTERS, PROJECTS AND STORIES BRIEFLY PARAPHRASED.

A Boy Bitten by Dogs—The propensity to "beat down" illustrated—Feline Longevity—A Story of a Man's Demise—Non-Suited in a $20,000 Damage Suit.

Dr. A. H. Mambert was called upon on Saturday by Patrick Leonard, of this City, to dress the wounds of a 10-year-old orphan boy. It seems a few days ago the boy, who was employed on a Delaware & Hudson Canal boat, was sent to a farm-house near Honesdale to procure milk. When he entered the farm yard he was set upon by two hounds. The boy in attempting to get away from the dogs crawled under a table, but was dragged out by the dogs and his body terribly lacerated. Dr. Mambert was told that the two surgeons who were first called to attend to the lad's injuries spent over two hours in the work. It was necessary for them to take 30 stitches in the boy's scalp alone and the scalp wounds are only a portion of the injuries which are on various portions of the lad's body. Dr. Mambert spent more than an hour dressing the injuries. He says the case is one of the worst of the kind he ever encountered in his practice.

This City has its quota of women who when they go shopping try to beat down the price. One day recently one of this class entered a grocery store and looked at some cabbage, the price of which was from five to 10 cents a head. The dealer knew his customer and resolved for once to give her no opportunity to try and beat down. Picking out the largest head of cabbage in the pile, he asked the price of it and was told a nickel. This startled her and she looked hard at the dealer a moment. But the habit was strong with her. Picking up a second large head she said: "Can't you give me the two heads for five cents?" "No," he shouted at her. "If you want any cabbage now you will have to pay 10 cents a head for it."

If the Rev. "Ed."—sometimes he signs "Ed." and sometimes "Eddie"—Ransford had taken a walk along the docks here on Sunday forenoon he would have witnessed a sight that would have caused him to blush for having made the assertion that cannibals were little better than beasts. On the top of a cabin were a father, mother and two children. The man was reading a Bible and the woman was asking her children questions from a catechism. All were neatly dressed and there was not the slightest sign about them that would lead a person to believe that they were the savages that Ransford has proclaimed them.

Philip Riley, son of John Riley, of Stony Hollow, died in New York City on Saturday morning. He was engaged unloading stone from a vessel the day previous. He was struck on the side and knocked into the Hudson River. He was rescued and then taken about having "got a wracking." He started to get dry clothing and walked about a block. Then he expirated blood. On Saturday he died. The body was brought to Stony Hollow on Saturday afternoon. The funeral was held on Sunday. It was largely attended.

Here may be a hint for workers in this City, from the correspondent of THE FREEMAN at Ancon, Columbia County. He writes: "The members of the Women's Christian Temperance Union are doing a good work here. The result was Sunday was a dry day. The electricity follows the telephone wires and 'burns out the telephones.'"

IN REFERENCE TO MAKING ARRESTS.

Some One Should Have Authority to Arrest Disreputable Persons Here.

The case of Agnus Schoonmaker, of Wawarsing, who was arrested on Thursday last by Officers Barry and Sullivan has attracted considerable attention. THE FREEMAN has taken some pains to ascertain all the facts in regard to the arrest. It is undoubtedly true that the officers had no warrant at the time of the arrest, but subsequently obtained one. From officers of the Delaware & Hudson Canal Company it is learned that Schoonmaker was very abusive in that office, and advised Cameron, who had previously been arrested and fined by Recorder Hussey, not to pay his fine, that the officers were trying to rob him. After leaving the company's office, Officers Barry and Sullivan say that Schoonmaker tried to release the prisoner Cameron, because his fine was paid, and therefore they arrested him. If it is true that the constables in this City have no authority to arrest drunken men who are disturbing the peace without first going to the Recorder to get a warrant, then they cannot be relied upon to keep order throughout the City. Some one should have authority to arrest disreputable persons without waiting for tedious forms of law.

WHAT IS BEING DONE BY CHURCH MEN AND WOMEN.

A Colored Man's Plea for an Orphan Asylum—A Sunday School Anniversary—A Kingston Preacher Talks About Telling Falsehoods—W. C. T. U. of Ulster County.

In his review, Superintendent G. B. Merritt said that from giving $17.34 a year the school now contributed to missions alone in a single year $300. The average for three quarters of the time the school had been established was $200 per year. A record kept for 20 years shows the Sunday School had only cost the congregation $200. Eighty per cent of the additions to the church came from the Sunday School. Only one name of the charter members is now on the rolls, that of Elijah Dubois. The address of the Rev. S. D. Noyes was interesting. The reports showed the school has a corps of 49 officers, teachers and helpers. Three members of the Sunday School died during the past year—the Rev. Henry McGiffert, J. D. Miner and Christine Olney.

At the close of morning service in the First Reformed Church, Kingston, on Sunday, a colored man, named Johnson, in homely but effective language, made an appeal for contributions to the Howard Orphan Asylum for Colored Children in Brooklyn. He deprecated the use of the term "colored" and said he used the word "black children" because there are only two races—one white, the other black. This asylum cared for 115 orphan children, between the ages of two and 12 years, during 1888. He recalled the fact that 48 of these children had the measles at one time. "I tell you we had a pretty hard time of it. You know how it is with your own children and can understand how hard it was for us to keep so many in bed. We lost three."

James Canfield gave an interesting benediction on "Repentance and Reviving." There was an audience of about 100.

Many questions of practical importance were discussed and much efficient work of a missionary nature mapped out for the future. Three months hence a convention will be held at Ancram.
